

When 'Faith' confronts 'Faith'

The asylum seeker crisis in Europe has created unforeseen challenges for Europe which the continent did not have to face since the end of the Great War.

Hundreds of thousands of asylum seekers have marched into Europe at will and without any intention to return to their country ever again.

Syria is finished!

Much of the nation is now in ruins and it would take decades to re-build it again. It seems only a matter of time before Damascus too will turn into a heap of ruins. This has even been foretold in the Bible (Isaiah 17:1 An oracle concerning Damascus: "See, Damascus will no longer be a city but will become a heap of ruins).

This is a city which is over 3,000 years old and which had never been conquered before.

As far as Europe is concerned, it seems that the problem has only just begun. There will be millions more who will follow in the future, who will try to force their way into the continent that contains all the promises that every Arab dream about.

A continent which it seems is ruled and governed by many man of 'good faith'. The 'faith' of Europe is the hope and the conviction that the great number of asylum seekers will all adapt to European culture and to the European way of life and thus enrich Europe's future labor market. That through their 'valuable' skills (at least so the media has been telling Europeans on an daily basis) they will create many new jobs and grow the economy and secure the future for Europe's aging population. Someone will have to pay for their pensions.

The fact that 20% of all Syrian adults cannot even read and write has been skillfully hidden in much of Europe's media. The real fact is that Syrians are one of the least educated people on earth!

Very few if any that come to Europe come with any valuable and with any employable skills. Most will end up living on welfare just as all other asylum seekers who had arrived in Europe in the past.

Europe's 'good faith' will one day have to give way to reality.

You cannot continue live in a dream that you yourself have created.

Sooner or later every 'dreamer' will be forced to wake up.

The fact is asylum seekers will make very little if any contribution to the future economic prosperity of Europe. They will become a massive big burden instead. It is Europe's Tax payers who will have to pay for them for a long time to come thus further creating resentment and widening the gap in society which already exists in Europe today.

The future of Europe's capital cities will consist of even more slums and produce even greater ethnic violence, hostility and crime.

This will be the outcome of the 'good faith' policy and of all the well-meaning intentions of Europe's leaders today.

Not long ago Angela Merkel announced on German TV that "wir schaffen das", (we will manage) She also told all Syrians, all Afghans, all Iraqis and anyone else that if they manage to get as far as Germany, they will be allowed to enter, they will be welcomed and they will be allowed to stay. In doing so she completely ignored Germany's existing multicultural crisis. If ever a leader has betrayed his own nation, those words represented the ultimate betrayal by a leader to his own people.

Germany's existing social problems are largely due to the government's failed immigration policy of the past years and now the government has added even more fuel to the fire.

Ethnic violence, a sharp increase in crime, rapes and immigrant ghettos are the direct result of a failed integration policy. And now the German Government has ensured that things will even get worse.

There are dark days ahead for the once great German nation.

Angela Merkel may have a smile on her face at the moment but not for a long. That smile will soon disappear in the future when the 'good faith' of Europe's leaders will encounter the full force of the 'faith' of its asylum seekers for they have come to Europe with a great 'faith'.

When the Macedonian Police handed out food parcels of the Red Cross to the supposedly 'hungry and starving' refugees, they were screamed at, they were yelled at and they were pushed back.

The hungry asylum seekers who had arrived at their doorstep did not want to accept their kind help. They openly shouted at and rebuked the Macedonian police as they tried to distribute the food "we don't want this, this is not Halal" and complained and they refused to accept it. The stunt police officers simply stood there in silence and with a horrified look on their face. They had tried to help and all they got in return was abuse for their kindness.

When the Muslims spotted the 'red cross' that was enough to send them into frenzy.

Islam has a deep hatred for the sign of the cross because it is a symbol of Christ. The Macedonians had just encountered Europe's new 'faith' and they were bewildered and greatly confused.

The fact was that the asylum seekers who had just marched into Europe were not as helpless as we had been told.

The media has fed on pictures of a few little children and a few old woman and man but the reality is that the far majority of all asylum seekers that have marched into Europe are young Muslim man. They are fit, young man of military age. Most of them had come from places where they had been fed, where they were sheltered and where they were safe from the war in their land. They were no longer affected by the war in Afghanistan, in Libya, in Iraq, in Syria and in other places in the Middle East.

They had taken the journey into Europe for one single reason, they came in search for a better life and for more money and they want to Islamize Europe and turn the continent into an Islamic continent in the near future.

And Europe it seems has been more than willing to comply to their wishes and fulfill their demands.

It would appear almost certain that the next food ration would have been Halal certified.

Only the brave Hungarian Prime Minister Urban (apart from very few others in Easter Europe) had the courage to say what everyone felt in his and in many other countries right across Europe.

"No one has an automatic right to someone else's prosperity".

Europeans worked hard to achieve their current standard of living and no one has the right to simply walk in and start to demand, to expect a free share in the wealth of a nation which is not even theirs.

It resembles the image of a thief who comes in the night and who demands that he has the right to somebody's savings!

Orban is now the 'dark horse' of Europe. He has dared to stand up and oppose the mighty EU.

But soon the 'faith' of Europe's new illegal migrants will become very transparent. Muslims have not come to Europe to assimilate. They have never shown any intention to do so in the past. Syrians have not come to Germany to turn into Germans.

Most of them despise western society and they hate western cultural values. They have come to Europe to benefit from the various nations riches (and they believe that they are entitled to this according to the words of the Quran). They have essentially come to Europe to conquer and rule!!!

The sad irony is that so many of the people who have offered their hearts and who have opened their borders will one day end up becoming asylum seekers themselves.

The leaders of Europe as well as most Europeans have made one gigantic deadly mistake that will lead to Europe's future destruction.

They have failed to understand the conquering spirit which hides behind the aggressive ideology of Islam. They do not understand the true meaning and the real message of the Quran. Most have even forgotten the history of their own nation.

For many years now we have been told by our leaders that Islam means 'peace'. (Which is totally incorrect, Islam means submission; it has nothing to do with peace whatsoever) It now seems that many of Europe's leaders (and other world leaders) have swallowed the lies which they have told us.

Austrians no longer remember the brutal Turkish siege of Vienna. School history textbooks rarely make a mention of the sheer brutality of this historic occupation. To do so would be politically incorrect and only a few teachers have the courage to break the rules and lose their jobs over it. And so a whole new generation grows up historically illiterate, without any idea what had once taken place in their own land!

When the Turks surrounded Vienna (and they did so twice) they raised all the town and village that were in sight to the ground. They brutally beheaded the men and raped most of the women. Then they picked up the little children and the small babies with their sharp spears and carried them around as 'war trophies'. Those infants died the most agonizing death imaginable.

This was even worse than what Isis is currently doing in Iraq!

We have forgotten all about the brutal conquest of the Balkans, of the rivers of blood that flowed in France and in Spain.

Europe as a whole prefers not to remember its own past any longer because political correctness has killed the truth about Europe's own history and it has turned the truth into a lie!

But one day all of Europe will come to its senses and realize the damage that was done by allowing so many of those asylum seekers to enter into Europe today. The children of Europe will suffer the full consequences of our leaders' misguided 'faith'.

In the light of a 'spiritual' (which it is at the moment) and eventually of a physical conflict, 'good faith' does not stand a chance when it is confronted with the 'faith' of Islam.

Islam's goal is world conquest and it is the holy duty of every Muslim to work towards that goal. Anyone else is simply a traitor and all traitors will one day end up in hell!

Vienna has been under siege twice in the past, a 3rd. time is coming. The tunnels have already been built and the invasion has begun some decades ago.

Southern France, parts of Spain will all be re-conquered again. Muslims consider this part of Europe as unfinished business for a land which had once been under the rule of Islam is considered part of Islam forever and it is the sacred duty of Muslims to re-conquer and to 'liberate' this land and to bring it back under the rule and the sovereignty of Islam once again.

Europe has lost its 'true faith' and its true spiritual foundation which had once laid the framework for its current success.

All that is left today is a 'faith' which resembles no more than 'good will' and this 'good will' will be shattered one day in the future.

Islam does not reward 'good will' for it equates kindness with weakness.

The asylum seekers which are confronted with Europe's 'good will' today are only affirmed in their belief and in their conviction that Islam will rule over Europe in the future, that they will be Europe's new Masters and Lord's.

This is what they are currently told in many of Europe's mosques while Europe's leaders are either asleep or simply keep quiet (and as in the case of some Scandinavian countries, mainly Sweden brutally silence and censor the media).

The 'weak faith' of kindness and of 'good will' is doomed to suffer a terrible death when it is finally confronted with violence and with brutal Islamic aggression.

Among the many thousands of Afghans, Syrians, Iraqis, Iranians and others there is a hidden army of Islamic Jihadists which has now arrived on European soil.

The borders were open and the enemy has already entered the land! They can't wait for the command when they can fulfill their hearts greatest desire, to bring about Europe's final destruction through brutal and through violent jihad.

Some years ago a few Pakistanis managed to bring the entire city of Mumbai in India to a complete standstill.

A few armed men managed to create such havoc in this city that they paralyzed most of Mumbai (a city of more than 10 million people)

Just imagine what an army of a few hundred thousand men will manage to do across Europe today?

The West has never come to terms with the mindset of radical Islam.

They simply cannot understand how someone can love death more than life. One Arab suicide bomber once said in his farewell note that "as long as we Arabs love to die more than you love to live we will have the upper hand and we will remain in control"

A force of thousands of men who are determined to die and who want to create as much havoc and as much destruction in the process will always be an existential threat Europe's future.

But instead of confronting the issue, instead of exposing the lies and revealing the threat Europe has chosen to look into the other direction. It has silenced the critiques (Sweden has recently passed a new law which has criminalized criticism of Islam while a Muslim can say that he will support violence in order to bring about an Islamic state without any fear of prosecution)

Instead Europe continues to pacify those threats and whose demands are increasing on an almost daily basis.

With Islam it has always been a 'one way' street.

Islam demands tolerance while it is destroying our freedom all at the same time.

Islam demands respect and recognition while it refuses to recognize anyone else.

And in order to appease and to empower the demanding voices of Islam Europe's Governments have just added more weight to their existing power and strength.

They will ensure that they will provide them with millions of additional voices in the future, with voices that will one day shout out in unity demanding more rights and "more power to Islam".

Europe's kind-hearted 'faith' will not have a future.

The continent is doomed in the light of the mighty 'faith' of Islam.

It is only a matter of time before this 'faith' explodes into open violence and leaves most of Europe's ancient cities in ruins.

Our 'disbelief' and our state of 'denial' is just the kind of ammunition that the 'faith of Islam' needs at the moment.

The longer Europe lives in this denial (as is evident in so many way) the more it will empower the radical 'faith of Islam'.

A failure to recognize and to understand the spiritual forces behind this message, behind the power that drives this 'faith' of Islam, will eventually result in Europe's decline and its ultimate death and destruction in the not distant future.

If a cancer grows in your body you will either kill or you will have it removed.

But instead of killing Islam's cells (its message) by exposing it, by challenging it and by outlawing its open call to violence and by removing its violent component (demanding an instant expulsion from Europe of any Muslim who is or has been engaged in any criminal activity) Europe has chosen the soft option instead.

It has decided to feed the cells so that they can grow even faster and thus increased the threat even more.

The 'un-confrontational' politics of Europe's leaders will only lead to an open confrontation in the end, a confrontation that will occur on the streets of most cities in Europe in the future.

The people of Europe have been greatly betrayed!

They have been betrayed by their leaders, by the church and by so many who think that they can solve this crisis by good will alone.

But the people of Europe still have a choice today (at least in some countries, that excludes Sweden and some others where people already live in a police state today) But too few take any action and voice their concerns. Those who do are often bitterly opposed, they get rejected and ridiculed while the cancer slowly progresses.

The voice that keeps quiet today will one day be rudely awaked by the sound of a gun.

First the shot will be heard from a distance but as time passes it will move closer to home.

By the time Islam is finished with Europe no street will have been left untouched. Every city and every town will have been badly affected and in the end many of Europe's old cities will appear no different to the bombed out and destroyed towns of Syria, of Chechnya and Afghanistan.

And when this happens many Europeans will end up becoming homeless again. It had all happened before but because we refuse to learn from our history, history has to teach us the same lesson again.

Much of Europe has been homeless before because one nation believed in a lie and fell for an illusion (the Nazi doctrine).

Will this tragic fate have to repeat itself once more in the future?

And where will people run to when they are in need?

Where will the Germans run to when the government has succeeded in turning Germany into a nation of asylum seekers? Where will the French run to, the Belgium's, the Danes and the Dutch, the Swedes and the Norwegians as well as the British?

It may seem far-fetched at the moment but the storm clouds are already on the horizon.

Many Imams of Europe know what to expect.

They are not as naïve as those whom they have tried to deceive (deception is a religious duty in order to spread the influence of Islam)

It's time to wake up, to speak out and march on the streets in protest so that our leaders can see.

Let them see and understand that we care for our children and that we want to preserve our freedom as well as our rights so that our children can still enjoy the same freedom and safety long after we are gone.

What will be our gift to the next generation? Will it be destruction and war or will it be freedom and prosperity? We cannot keep our borders open and protect our nations that way !

We have 50 million Muslims in Europe. There are signs that Allah will grant Islam victory in Europe—without swords, without guns, without conquest—will turn it into a Muslim continent within a few decades.
